While we leave these questions to be answered by the K. These papers deny the pover of Congress.

We find the above paragraph in one of our DENOCRATIC STATE TICKET. We find the above paragraph in one of the purpose of correcting a misstatement of our position, which no one who pretends to read this paper Should have made. The Yeomen has never specifically denied the power of Congress to legislate within the restrictions of the Federal Constitution for the protection of any species of private preperty. It has not been necessary to the argument we have made in fivor of non-intervention either to affirm or deny the power of Congress upon the subject of slavery in the Territories, and we do not remember to have denecither further than to rive our hearty and emphatic indusementation to the Dreil Scot decision.
